EQAO results improve

Elementary

It is a snapshot of one group of students on one day in one year, but it can tell principals, teachers, parents and school-board members a lot.

The Education Quality and Accountability Office results for Grades 3 and 6 of the 2007/2008 year were released in September and show upward trends in reading, writing and math for both Stuart Baker Elementary School and J.D. Hodgson Elementary School.

It also charts how students are feeling about those subjects – whether they are “good at math” or “like reading” or have someone older help them with writing at home.

“I love it. We’re very healthy and [the students are] working very hard and our focus is still reading, writing and math,” said Stuart Baker principal France Meunier.

At Meunier’s school more than 70 per cent of students were at or above the provincial standard on the EQAO test in all three subjects. Sixty-six students took the test, 29 girls and 37 boys.

HHHS: we’ve come a long way

There was a time when Ray Selbie despaired of the future of health care in the Highlands.

As the county went through the sometimes painful process of deciding how to distribute limited health care resources, he feared that the county would end up with nothing.

But then everyone pulled together and, with help from the provincial and federal governments, new facilities were approved for Minden and Haliburton village.

Selbie, a long-time lawyer in Haliburton, did his part by becoming an inaugural member of the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation. It was the foundation’s task to raise the community’s $6 million to build the new facilities.

The county has met that challenge and is now rallying behind the $2.5 million Reach For The Future campaign for new technologies.

Now it’s time for him to step back from playing such an active role. He’s resigning from the foundation but he won’t stop believing in its goals.

Take the newest campaign for telemedicine technology. “We’re all getting older and in greater need of health care,” he says. He knows of a lot of people who have to drive to Peterborough or Bracebridge for tests. Telemedicine will help reduce the number of those trips because tests can be done in Haliburton and Minden and the results can be sent electronically to specialists in urban areas.

Already the digital PACS machines are making a difference. Digital x-rays can be taken at each site and viewed in seconds by health care professionals hours away.

Bill Lishman unveils new Haliburton sculpture

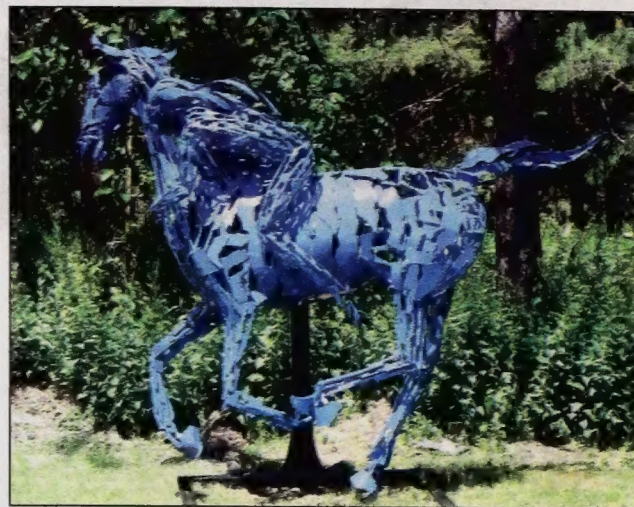

The Haliburton Sculpture Forest is delighted to announce the dedication of a new sculpture on October 25 at 2 p.m. Horse and Rider (Kennisis) was created by artist, sculptor, filmmaker, author, art director, inventor, pilot, naturalist and entrepreneur Bill Lishman. Lishman is a versatile artist of world renown. His works over the past three decades include two award-winning films and numerous works of public art, which include an 86-foot-high central theme sculpture for Expo '86 in Vancouver and a 2,700-square-foot 21st century earth integrated dome home. He, and seven pieces of his sculpture, star in the acclaimed 3D IMAX film the Last Buffalo.

Lishman was one of the pioneers of ultralight flight in Canada and in 1988 became the first human to lead birds in formation. In 1993 he led the first experimental migration of geese from Ontario to Virginia, which was documented by ABC's 20/20.

The dedication ceremony will be followed by a reception and comments by Lishman.

On Friday, Oct. 24, popular Highlands actors Kathryn Boyd and Tim Nicholson will star in Love Letters. "This is a play, or rather a sort of a play, which needs no theater, no lengthy rehearsal, no special set, no memorization of

"It is designed simply to be read aloud by an actor and an actress of roughly the same age, sitting side by side at a table." The performance is a fundraiser for Places for People which hopes to create affordable rental spaces in the county. The dinner buffet is at 6:30 at Minden's Dominion Hotel and the play starts at 8, followed by dessert and discussion with the actors. Tickets are $45 for the dinner and play or $20 for the play only and are available at the Dominion Hotel.

GREG HOEKSTRA/Echo

While she may be 12,000 kilometres from home, 17-year-old Cindy Chou keeps in touch with friends and family back in Taiwan through an online blog and MSN Messenger. Cindy is visiting Haliburton as part of the Rotary Club's student exchange program. For the next year she will take Grade 12 classes at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

Exchange student dives into Haliburton life

GREG HOEKSTRA

Staff Reporter

Up until only two months ago 17-year-old Cindy Chou had never swam in a lake, roasted a marshmallow, or walked a German Shepherd.

Niagara Falls was something she had only seen in movies, while country fairs were something she had only read of in books, such as E.B. White's Charlotte's Web.

All that changed, however, when Cindy arrived in Haliburton from Taipei City, Taiwan, in August as the Haliburton Rotary Club's exchange student.

For the next year, give or take, Cindy will now have the opportunity to experience life as a red-blooded Canadian while studying Grade 12 at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

Sitting on a plush sofa next to her host, Traci Hubbert, Cindy says her experiences in Canada so far have been both exciting and eye-opening – not to mention extremely different from her day-to-day life back home.

"Everything's very different," she says, pausing to look around Hubbert's large open living room. "Like this fireplace...We don't have fireplaces in our homes in Taiwan. I live in an apartment, so I'm not used to so much space. Sometimes I get afraid because it's only me home and little sounds will scare me."

Of course, being a little scared is only natural when one is 12,000 kilometres from home. Scared comes with the territory, but it's no reason to miss out on the chance of a lifetime, says Cindy.

Ever since her family took a trip to British Columbia when she was nine Cindy has wanted to come back to Canada, so when the opportunity came up through Rotary, she jumped at it.

"I always wanted to be an exchange student. To go abroad and see new things," she says.

"In Taiwan our TV shows are from all over the world, from Korea and America, and I wanted to know what it's really like."

Cindy chose Canada as the first of six countries she wanted to visit.

And while Haliburton is much different than her childhood memories of Vancouver, or the Rocky Mountains, Cindy says she's already beginning to feel at home thanks to the hospitality of others in the community.

"People here are very friendly. More friendly than I expected,"

she says happily. "They're always helping, and they're not stingy with their smiles."

Part of that may be because Haliburton is such a laid-back community. Compared to the hustle and bustle of Taipei – a city of more than 2.6 million – Haliburton County and the 15,000 who live here "enjoy their lives more" and "know how to play," says Cindy.

"Sometime here people will spend an hour just sitting there, or they lie down and enjoy the sunshine. In Taipei that's impossible," she says. "Sometimes I almost feel too free. If I'm doing nothing I feel guilty. I feel like I'm wasting time."

Canada's weather also took some getting used to, compared to the 30-plus-degree heat that cooks Taipei all summer long.

"It's cold for me in the morning, but I think I'm getting stronger over time," she laughs.

"But I have never seen snow, so it will absolutely be a very new experience for me. Someone told me it will even snow four metres high."

At school, Cindy says classes are going well, although adjusting to her new English surroundings has sometimes been a challenge, like when her English class was asked to write an essay about their impressions of Wilfred Owen's First World War poem "Dulce et Decorum Est."

Bent double, like old beggars under sacks,

Knock-kneed, coughing like hags, we cursed through sludge,

Till on the haunting flares we turned our backs,

And towards our distant rest began to trudge.

"There were a lot of words in the poem I don't understand, so I had to underline them and look them up in the dictionary," she smiles. "And in art class they were discussing about 'context' but I don't know what 'context' is. They just kept saying 'context, context, context.'"

Not only is the course material different from back home, but so are the hours, and even the classmates.

In Taiwan, Cindy attended an all-girls school with 3,000 students and a strict uniform dress code. Classes run from 7:30 a.m. to 5:10 p.m. some days, with a half-hour naptime in which students are allowed to pull out pillows and sleep on their desks.

At Hal High, classes are shorter, and so are the days. There are fewer students enrolled, and students are free, more or less, to choose their own wardrobe – including hair all colours of the rainbow.

"It's very different for me. Even on the streets we seldom see people dressing like that, or with hair colour that's pink or blue or purple," she says. "I think it's good to give teenagers the freedom to decide what they want to be. In Taiwan we're not always offered the chance to choose."

Cindy is also looking forward to letting loose her creative side as a photographer for the Hal High yearbook class.

"Yearbook class is pretty special for me," she says. "In that class I think maybe I can leave something good here."

While Cindy says she does miss home from time to time, the Internet has helped her keep in touch with her friends and family through programs such as Skype, MSN Messenger, and her own online travel blog.

And while she may get the occasional craving for the sights, sounds, people or food of Taipei City, Cindy also says she knows she is only here in Haliburton for one year, and she's determined to make the most of it.

"I don't want being homesick to bother me or stop me from enjoying my life here," she says.

Play gives happiness an ironic twist

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

What does it mean to be happy?

The two main characters in Jerelyn Craden's play sure wish they knew. In the meantime, they have a lot to tell you about being unhappy but they'll have make it brief since tomorrow they intend to commit suicide.

Perhaps this is not your idea of a comedy but the audience at Friday night's reading of Craden's play, Happy, should expect to laugh when they're introduced to the two main characters who check into a posh hotel the night before Christmas with plans to check out – permanently – the next day.

"The play is an ironic, edgy comedy," says Craden, a singer-novelist-marketing consultant who moved to Haliburton last December. "It's a comic way of dealing with a serious issue. It's not ha-ha funny – it's a sharp verbal sparring match but it's also poignant and sweet.

"It's the way I try to deal with things in real life. I do laugh and I do cry and do both equally. It's just like the best comedies have the most conflict."

Friday night's performance at R. D. Lawrence Place in Minden is not a full-blown production of the play. Instead, it's part of the Playwrights Workshop Minden series that is designed to give playwrights instant feedback about their work before it is staged.

Craden has asked three local actors to join her in a dramatized reading of her play. They've been rehearsing over the past few weeks but there will be no stage or props. Instead, they'll stand behind a podium and read, including all the stage directions.

Craden "plays" one of the two main characters. The other is performed by singer David Archibald, whose own play, The Perilous Pirate's Daughter, was part of the Highlands Summer Festival.

"David could read the Yellow Pages and move you and make you laugh," Craden says. "He is really fabulous."

The two minor characters appear as memories, helping to explain why Craden and Archibald got to where they are and why they want to go no further. Their parts will be read by Terry Anderson, who does "a sweet job" at perfecting a Jewish accent, and Barry Wilhelm, a host at Canoe FM. Sheryl Loucks will read the stage directions. (Her play, Kashag, a provocative who-done-it, was read a couple of weeks ago.)

Craden doesn't want to give away too much of the plot but she does reassure people that it does have a happy ending.

She's looking forward to getting the audience's suggestions on how to give the play its own happy ending – a full-blown production. The play has been performed at Hamilton Place as part of its Brave New Works series, but Craden wants it to have legs so it can run on stages across the country.

"The play had to be written," she says. It's not a subject matter that most people like to talk about and yet if you scratch beneath the surface of most family's lives, you'll find it.

She got the idea for the play years ago when she asked her brother-in-law if he was happy. To all extents and purposes he had all the trappings of happiness – the successful career, family, possessions – but she'll never forget his answer: "He said, 'I don't know. What is happy?'"

She tinkered on the play while exploring other sides of her personality. She's also a singer, voice-over actress, screenwriter, novelist and marketing wordsmith. Born in Chicago, she moved to Los Angeles at the age of nine and even in grade school was writing themed presentations which she would take from class to class. She worked on television shows in New York and Toronto and, a few recessions later, wrote staged musical productions for corporate conferences. After the death of her mother, whom she loved deeply and who gave Craden her sense of style and pizzazz, Craden took three years off and wrote her novel, Vessie Flamingo – Outshining the Moon.

She moved to Haliburton last December to work at Patient News Publishing and escape Toronto's busyness. She'd been to Haliburton in the 1970s with her former husband, the late Michael Craden, who was one of the founding members of the percussion group Nexus.

"It was a need for me to be in a place that was grounded and natural," she says from her home overlooking Grass Lake. "I remember writing a song, Where's My Home, looking for the place that authenticated me. Now I'm finding out that home is an inside place but our environment has to be in sync with what we need."

It takes a lot of courage to have people critique your play while you're listening but Craden says that interactive responsiveness is what gives live theatre its thrill.

She wrote the play out of "a genuine desire to connect to other human beings and express for other people what they're thinking and feeling.... It's a collective experience. [Writing a play] is really a holistic experience – unless you're just satisfied to keep it in your hard drive.

"I want to know if the play moved them, if they could relate – 'I loved it, I hated it....'" The idea is for the playwright, before the play goes into production, to get a sense of whether it's doing its job."

To be part of this creative process, join the reading workshop of Happy on Friday, October 17 at R.D. Lawrence Place, next to the Agnes Jamieson Gallery and museum in Minden. The reading starts at 7 p.m. As part of the workshop series, the Grill on the Gull restaurant has created a special menu to be enjoyed before the reading.

Donations are down, but foundation still healthy

JENN WATT

Staff Reporter

The Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation is in good financial shape this year, members heard at the annual general meeting October 3.

Despite a small drop in donations in the special gift program and fewer fundraisers, the organization that raises money to help local health-care facilities with infrastructure is still bringing in healthy sums of money for new technologies and equipment.

Since 1998, HHHSF has raised $7.5 million for the Minden and Haliburton hospitals, executive director Dale Walker said.

Walker outlined the financial goals for the organization, including completely paying for the picture archiving communication systems that cost $731,000. The second priority for HHHSF is $450,000 for stationary ceiling lifts for both locations.

The letters that accompanied both Highlands East and Minden Hills tax invoices this year raised $6,252 and "is a way to reach new donors ... plus we don't have to pay for postage," Walker said.

The Christmas holiday letter, though costly to print, brought in $93,000.

Other successful fundraisers during the year included the Moose FM radio-a-thon ($23,443), the poker ride ($5,050), and golf classic ($45,000) among many, many others.

An auditor from McColl Turner presented her assessment of the foundation's finances, saying that everything was in line. There were fewer funds due to a drop in the special gift program, which includes money from people's estates after they pass away, and a $48,000 drop in fundraising because the Ethel Curry book and artful garden were not part of this year's activities.

Board member Ray Selbie resigned from the board after 12 years of volunteer work. "He spent countless hours on the special gift committee ... and was known as a mentor and voice of reason," said chair Peter Oyler of Selbie's time with HHHSF.

The board welcomed a Marilynne Robertson as a new member.

On Thursday night, District Governor Tom Bennett joined Haliburton Rotary Club president Jim Miners and fellow Rotarians in presenting members of the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation with a cheque for $15,000. The Reach For The Future campaign is paying for those machines.

As one of his last duties on the foundation, Selbie was at the Haliburton Hospital last Thursday night when the Haliburton Rotary Club presented a cheque for $15,000 as part of its $50,000 commitment to the campaign.

The foundation will place a bench at the Haliburton site in honour of Selbie's contributions.

Lost connections

MANY PEOPLE CHOOSE to live in small towns because it is easier to feel connected to both the land and the people who share your love of that particular place. There are costs to this choice – ironically, less choice of virtually everything you might need, from career options to where to go on a date or family night – but they are far outweighed in benefits.

In some ways, small towns are a rejection of the social transformation going on in our urban areas where most people live and work in separate communities. People in Ontario's sprawling suburbs leave their homes in the morning, drive to work sometimes an hour away, spend the day with their colleagues and then drive home at night. There's no connection between two major fac-

ets of their life. Even the urban landscape makes it difficult to make connections with the people who live in the same town. There are no sidewalks, no corner stores or libraries within walking distance, and few opportunities for spontaneous interaction with neighbours or acquaintances. You drive everywhere and when you get there, chances are you don't know many people.

Compare that to a typical day in Haliburton, where you always have to give yourself an extra 15 minutes for grocery shopping because that's when you get caught up with friends' news, and you always make eye contact with everyone you pass on the street because to do otherwise is a sign of rudeness. There are a hundred little connections between your home life, your work life and your community. When you go to the bank, the woman who's behind the counter may have a son who plays hockey with your son. At the post office you may run into an acquaintance whose spouse has been ill and you find out how the two of them are coping. You know the store owner by name.

Over the years, these thousands of little connections make you feel a part of something bigger. You watch children grow and have children of their own. You watch people age and then say goodbye to them at their funeral. You find out little things about people and learn to like them for the littlest things. Every social interaction adds layer upon layer on your sense of community.

And then something happens that gives you an inexplicably large sense of loss. This past weekend, Crystal Bain died of complications following the birth of her second child. Not only does this seem so shocking in our day and age, but the tragedy is made more real because those occasional times that your paths crossed had made her a real person to you. You knew her angelic smile and sweet voice. You knew her as a woman who came from a large, loving family and always had lots of love to give back. She gave something of herself even when it was just saying hello on the street. She was part of the communal memory of what makes Haliburton what it is.

To her family and friends, of course, she meant so much more and their grief at this time is incomprehensible. One can only hope that they can gain strength from knowing that so many people were grateful that they shared even a small part of their life with Crystal.

Take a bite out of shark deaths

Shark fin soup, considered a delicacy in China, and pretty well all of the nouveau riche countries of the Far East, is the one and only cause of the slaughter of more than 100-million sharks every year. Yes – one-hundred million.

Idiotically, the addition of a shark fin adds nothing to the taste of the soup but merely puts a high price ($300 a bowl) on the dish, and thereby indicates the wealth and standing of the purchaser. I can't believe that the people of these countries could possibly realize the cruelty, stupidity and disgusting waste that this self-aggrandizing indulgence wreaks. And I'm sure few know the environmental danger that the extinction of sharks will cause. The fact is, the extinction of sharks equals the extinction of mankind.

The sharks' horrifying plight was brought to my attention when I watched an award-winning documentary called Sharkwater by Toronto marine biologist Rob Stewart. It is riveting film. Stewart set out to make a simple documentary to show the world that sharks are very misunderstood animals. It turned into a real-life adventure that would put most movie dramas to shame, featuring espionage, terror, Mafia shoot-outs and government gunboat chases. Frighteningly entertaining. It's also so infuriating that it will make you swear out loud.

It's about the horrifically cruel, wasteful massacre of the world's shark population by countries around the world, such as Costa Rica and Ecuador, which controls the unique Galapagos Islands, all allowing the carnage of one of the world oldest and most important animals. Of course, more important are the buying countries, most of which would have you believe they had become more civilized of late, but of course can't help themselves from displaying their baser instincts, and insanely backward superstitions. (See above.)

Costa Rica, boasting some of the finest eco-tourism in the world, pretends not to be in the shark-fin business, but still is, probably being paid off by the Taiwan mafia; they hide this industry far from the tourist eco-paths. Concealed from visitors' eyes are millions of drying shark fins that will eventually be shipped to China and other Far East countries.

The poachers capture the sharks on what are known as "long lines" which extend for as much as 30 miles. The shark is then pulled aboard and its fins carved off and, still alive, thrown back into the water to drown, or sink to the bottom where it will be eaten alive by other fish. The poachers aren't interested in taking up a lot of space with the rest of the shark, just the fins. Meanwhile their yearly protein waste is roughly 80 million tons, while two-thirds of the world starves. (How stupid is the human race?)

What can we do? I guess we can only try to hit the countries where it will hurt. Don't visit Costa Rica until they prove they are out of the fin business. Write to your favourite Far East car company let them know you are considering another brand due to the shark fin issue, and demand an answer. This might seem like a little much for busy folks like us, but as you will see when you watch this film, the world as we have been enjoying it, will disappear with the extinction of the sharks.

Speed isn't everything

Nowadays, it seems that few archers would even consider buying a bow or crossbow unless it hurled arrows across the sky at speeds stone-aged man could only dream about. If your bow isn't shooting at 300 feet per second or better, people wonder how serious you take your deer hunting.

Obviously, arrow speed is important, but let me just point out that when I started bowhunting, some 25 years ago, deer were routinely killed by bows that shot 200 feet per second or less. And, if your bow was shooting 240 feet per second, we considered that very fast.

Vinegar Hill

Now you'd hardly even consider such a bow because – God forbid – it would be one-twentieth of a second slower over the span of 20 yards (the average distance most bowhunted deer are shot at).

So, why is there all the hype about speed? Is it just slick marketing? Or have the deer evolved into a superfast, lightning-reflexed animal in the last quarter century?

I tell my wife the latter – otherwise, she'll begin to question the need for me to purchase yet another new bow.

Here's how I do it.

In the old days, I explain, native archers were lucky to have bows that shot in the neighborhood of 150 feet per second (a historical fact). And, yes, they killed a lot of deer – in fact they killed all the slow ones, (we'll call them the 150 fps gene pool.) Natural selection, being what it is, caused all the faster, surviving deer to produce faster offspring. This meant succeeding generations of hunters have needed faster bows. And this trend has continued right up until modern times.

Right now, I tell her, the 299 fps deer is rare indeed, but don't lament that; there are literally millions of 300 fps deer out there yet. Hence the very real need for a bow that shoots 300 fps or better, especially if it has 80 per cent let-off, fibre-optic sight, a state-of-the-art arrow rest, and the latest camo pattern.

Sooner or later, she'll note that Stone-Age hunters survived on deer they arrowed.

Don't worry; I'm ready. I'll explain that hunters in the Stone Age had it made. They used bows that were much slower because their deer were much slower too. Typically, they'd be able to stalk within 30 yards of an animal, shoot, have a power nap, and wake up in time to see if the arrow hit the mark. If it missed, they'd shoot again, but only if they had no other pressing appointments.

Sometimes, if the deer was particularly far away, they might even have time to skin out a woolly mammoth or paint murals on the cave wall.

I'll then remind her that modern deer are not nearly so considerate. No, they are far faster than the animals of last year – hence the need for a new and faster bow.

The down side of this, I'll lament, is that soon, deer will become so fast that arrows will have to be able to produce a sonic boom to remain effective.

New innovations will be required.

Perhaps we'll have to launch arrows by means of a propellant. But hold it! To do that, you'll need to contain the explosion while still allowing the projectile to shoot forward. You'd have to place the projectile in a tube of some sort. Of course, you'd need to mount the tube on a stock to control it, and have something that would set off the propellant; some sort of primer. And you'd need to strike the primer to set it off...

It's complicated but I'm sure we can come up with the technology. I'll give it some more thought it when I'm sighting in my rifle and get back to you. I'm sure the answer will come to me.

letters to the editor

This is truly a time of thanks

To the Editor:

Last Thanksgiving made for the worst - and best - holiday weekend of my life. Having grown up in Haliburton, my two siblings and I gathered at the family cottage near Gooderham with our spouses and kids, as we do nearly every Thanksgiving, to relax and enjoy each other's company.

Several of the kids had gone out for a long walk on Sunday, as is tradition, and the ladies were just getting Thanksgiving dinner on the table when we got the news. The group had become separated and three of the teenagers were missing - one from each family.

We immediately began to search for the missing kids but darkness had set in and a dense fog made searching even more difficult. It became clear that this was a job for the experts, so we called the OPP.

And experts they were. They responded immediately to our call and arrived at the cottage well within the hour. They assessed the situation quickly and called in officers with ATV and canine units to assist in the search. After many agonizing hours, our kids were returned safely on Monday morning, and we all sat down to a true Thanksgiving dinner ... for breakfast!

To the OPP officers and volunteers that dropped everything (many of them having already worked around the clock) to find our missing kids last Thanksgiving, mere words can't convey the depth of our gratitude. For this, and every future Thanksgiving, I give thanks for the biggest blessing of all.

Harper doesn't show good leadership skills

To the Editor:

If leadership qualities are important in this election, then we have to make it very clear to Stephen Harper that he doesn't have the qualities that make a good leader. He has shown contempt for the law by calling this election; he has shown contempt for the electorate by failing to present a platform before the debates; and he was the only party leader who refused to take questions directly from the public on The National. Harper tried to deny Elizabeth May her right to present The Green Party's platform to the electorate. If he had any sense of Canadian values, he would have known attempting to block the democratic process was both irresponsible, and politically suicidal. He has ignored concerns of environmentalists around his environment and global warming policies, and ignored concerns from criminologists around his justice policies (jailing 14 year olds).

It's the Harper way, or no way. People with closed minds do not make good leaders!

Drs. office decision 'dumb'

To the Editor:

I was totally shocked when I read that Highlands East council made the closed-door decision to close the Wilberforce Medical Centre, supposedly from underutilization. What kind of dumb maneuver was this? Both Minden and Haliburton areas are pleading and begging to try to get extra medical staff and Highlands East council deems fit to actually close down a medical facility.

Author invites local readers to share his journey

JENN WATT

Staff Reporter

First-time novelist C.S. Richardson was shocked at the awards and praise he received for his novel The End of the Alphabet; after working in the publishing industry for 25 years, he had seen many worthy books fail in the market and hardly expected his own to do any better.

Yet after its release in January, 2007, his novella about a quirky 50-year-old Londoner named Ambrose Zephyr given 30 days to live, was showered with positive reviews, the Commonwealth Writer's Prize for best first novel, named a Globe and Mail Best Book and was short-listed for the Amazon.ca/Books in Canada First Novel Award. It is sold in 15 countries and is published in 10 different languages.

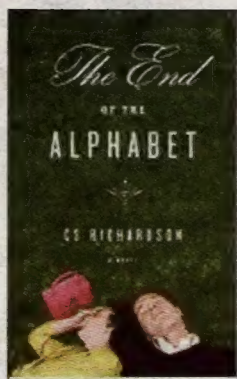

"Because I've spent so much time in the publishing business, I kind of know, as they say, how the sausages are made. And I know that first novels in any country, particularly in Canada, ... that are not 300, 400, pages long, that are not set in Canada or deal with Canadian subject matter, I know that they 99 per cent of the time die a cruel death. They may get reviewed very well, but nothing else will happen with them," Richardson said in an interview with the Echo.

"So, I went into it knowing that that was by far the likelihood, but I wanted to see if I could do it," he said.

Richardson is the featured author at this year's third annual book gala Sunday, October 19 held by the Friends of Haliburton County Public Library at Fleming College.

In 139 pages, Richardson takes the reader through the extraordinary last days of Zephyr, who travels with his literary-editor wife Zappora "Zipper" Ashkenazi on a trip through Europe with locations following the alphabet from Amsterdam to Zanzibar.

Everything about the story is carefully chosen and intentionally sparse – the sentences and chapters are short and the reader gets the feeling she's reading words that were laboured over for just the right fit.

"I wrote an awful lot to get to what The End of the Alphabet is now. I went through more drafts and more false starts and literally to the point of crumpling up the paper and throwing it against the wall. So I wrote ... close to 100,000 words that ended up being the 20-odd-thousand that are in the final novel," Richardson said.

"Some of it hurt a lot, most of it didn't hurt in the least. No one will ever see the 80,000 that didn't make the cut. Literally, I was learning. It was just going through the exercises and trying to get it right," he said.

With no formal creative writing education, Richardson learned to write as he did it. A certain amount he credits to his years of working with the best in fiction as a marketer and acclaimed book designer based in Toronto. Part of the process was rereading his favourite novels and putting together a book similar to the ones he liked. Writing short was part of that too.

"I tend to read more novels that come out of Europe and Latin America and South America that tend to be shorter in heft, but certainly no less of a novel than anything that's coming out of North America that's 600 pages," he said.

"I found as I was writing the story that it was a short, lean, economical kind of tale," he said.

And despite being born in the Prairies and growing up in the suburbs of Toronto, Richardson set the entire book in the U.K. and Europe. There are two reasons for that, Richardson said. First, he just loves London and Europe, but second, it made the travels of Zephyr a little easier.

"For a purely technical reason, the premise of the story is he's about to go on a whirlwind tour for 30 days and it's a lot easier to do that in Europe as opposed to being based in Huntsville and having to go to Mexico City," he said.

Sunday's book gala will begin with an interview between Richardson and Jack Brezina and will be followed by an open forum where anyone can ask just about anything of the author.

Richardson said he and his 14-year-old daughter, who regularly camps in Algonquin Park, "can't wait" for the trip up to Haliburton. "We're so lucky that we're coming up at this time of the year," he said.

Tickets are $15 and can be purchased at Master's Book Store, Undercover Books and Minden Book and Stationery. The gala begins at 2 p.m. and coffee and dessert will be available. Call 705-447-2402 for more information.

The girls running team at J.Douglass Hodgson Elementary School did particularly well at a recent cross country meet in Lindsay. Twin sisters Ali and Brigitta Hicks "owned" the senior girls division, Whitney MacDuff won the bronze medal in intermediate girls and the junior girls made the championships.

JDHES leads the way in district cross country run

BLAKE PATON

Special to The Echo

The J.D. Hodgson Jaguars cross-country running team brought home the hardware when they travelled to Lindsay for the Trillium Lakelands District School Board championships on October 7.

In individual results, twin sisters Ali and Brigitta Hicks owned the senior girls division and left the field far behind as they finished first and second in the 4-km contest.

Emma Paul put in a personal-best performance and finished fourth in a field of 60 runners.

"On the first part of the course there were a couple of girls who sprinted and then tired and started walking," said Ali. "Seeing the leading biker helped us go faster," she added.

"After the first part of the course we were all alone," said Brigitta, "but it was pretty close between us at the finish."

On the senior boys' side, team newcomer Brad Wood picked up a ribbon for his seventh place finish in a field of 65.

Whitney MacDuff was the bronze medalist in the intermediate girls' race, as she battled hard against the competition on her 3-km course.

In the team competition, the junior girls' squad was paced to the team championship by Brynn Meyers, who finished fourth in her 2-km race. She was followed by Ally Paul in sixth, Kendal Marsden 17th, Hannah Klose 18th, Emma Scheffee 20th, Christina Steven 43rd, Christine Bishop 46th, Julia McEathron 54th and Betty Paton 58th. Together the girls easily outdistanced the competition for the team title with all of the girls finishing well in the top half of the 140-strong field.

In the senior girls' team division, the team consisting of the Hicks sisters, Emma Paul, Jessica Bishop, Jamie Dack and Sandy Griffith finished a close second to a large contingent from Central Senior Public School in Lindsay.

The JDHES team had several strong showings and many top-20 results. Although key illnesses hampered the team on the boys' side, the athletes are looking forward track-and-field in the spring and, of course, next years' cross-country season.

Hodgson faces two-game suspension

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

Cody Hodgson has had a rough return to his OHL team.

The captain of the Brampton Battalion is facing a two-game suspension after a fight broke out in the final minutes of Saturday night's game against the Sudbury Wolves.

Coach Stan Butler said in a posting on the Brampton Battalion website, "They'd lost at home Friday night and didn't want to lose another one at home. We didn't want to lose our fourth in a row, and when you have those situations you get a game like we saw. I don't know what happened at the end. Cody's in his third season in the league and, for him to get into a fight, [Gerome] Giudice must have done something to provoke him. It's not something that's typical for Cody."

Hodgson, who recently played three pre-season games with the Vancouver Canucks before being sent back to his old team for the season, was assessed an instigating minor for the fight.

Saturday's 4-3 loss was the fourth consecutive disappointment for the Battalion. Hodgson scored two of the Battalion's goals while his friend from Haliburton, Matt Duchene, scored the other.

HUNTING SEASON 2008

Take a young person hunting

Many residents throughout Haliburton County have fond memories about their first forays in the woods. The sight of a whitetail deer, the flush a ruffed grouse, or the gobble of a wild turkey create lasting memories and, often, instill a life-long love of the outdoors. Really, the best way to understand and appreciate nature is to see it first hand.

That's why this hunting season, experienced hunters should take their spouse or a young person hunting.

"Most youth love the outdoors, and they want so much to be apart of the hunting experience," said Mike Reader, Executive Director of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters. "Young people introduced to hunting early will develop an enthusiasm for fish and wildlife conservation in years to come. Every hunter should make an effort to introduce at least one young person to the tradition of hunting."

A first step in introducing a young person or new outdoor enthusiast to the hunting tradition is to enroll them in a local hunter education program or the new Hunter Apprenticeship Safety Program.

The hunter education program is an exciting, 20-hour course that provides training in many outdoor related activities, including wilderness survival, wildlife tracking and identification, habitat management, field techniques, safety and ethics. The course is mandatory for every new hunter in Ontario.

Following successful completion of the Hunter Education Program, new hunters can further their hunting training by participating in Ontario's new Hunter Apprenticeship Safety Program (H.A.S.P.) The program is designed to give practical hunting experience while under the direct supervision of a fully qualified and licensed hunting mentor.

Hunters should remember the following guidelines when taking new hunters afield to learn:

- keep the hunting party small - in a large hunting party it is difficult to maintain a controlled teaching environment for an apprentice.
- involve the apprentice in all aspects of the hunt from planning the hunt and packing the equipment to cleaning the game after the hunt.

• prepare for the hunt with outdoor walks and detailed discussions of what to expect on the hunt.

• plan to hunt only part of the day; apprentices are not ready for dawn to dusk marathons.

• be sure the apprentice is properly dressed for the day; don't forget the hunter orange.

Take time to enjoy the outdoors and be sure to teach the apprentice that there is more to hunting than filling

Hunters improve public safety

A record number of vehicle collisions with wildlife continues to reinforce the virtues of the annual hunting season especially throughout parts of Durham Region, says the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters.

Recently, the Ontario Ministry of Transportation announced that in the past decade, collisions with wildlife have jumped 86 percent. In 2003, over 13,000 vehicle/wild animal collisions were reported (many more go unreported). On average, there is a costly collision with wildlife approximately every 38 minutes in Ontario – about 90 percent of these are collisions with deer. One out of every 18 vehicle collisions involves a wild animal.

Lanark County, Ottawa, Simcoe County, Thunder Bay and Middlesex County are the five areas in Ontario with the highest number of combined property damage, injury and fatal collisions as a result of wildlife.

"Hunters play a critical role in keeping our roadways safe," said O.F.A.H. Biologist, Ed Reid. "Hunting is more than just a time-honored family tradition, it's also a proven wildlife management tool. Regulated hunting helps reduce crop damage, habitat degradation as well as vehicle collisions with wild animals. In fact, wildlife experts estimate that, if it were not for hunters, collisions with wildlife would soar by over 200 percent," he said.

The O.F.A.H. is proud to point out all of the valuable contributions made by Ontario's half a million licensed hunters, particularly in the interests of public safety, economics and conservation. While hunting in Ontario represents $1.5 billion in economic activity, over $10 million in annual hunting license fees pays for conservation enforcement, research and restoration programs.

Hunt camps aim at fire safety

In August, 2007, three people died tragically in a fire at a hunting and fishing camp in the County of Haliburton. In June of 2008, two separate fires in trailer homes resulted in the deaths of four people. There was no evidence of working smoke alarms in any of these fires.

The Ontario Fire Code requires every dwelling unit in Ontario to have working smoke alarms on every storey and outside all sleeping areas. The term dwelling unit includes seasonal homes such as park model trailers, cabins and cottages and also includes trailer homes, motor homes and other recreational vehicles.

"To prevent further fire injuries and fatalities, anglers and hunters should remember to pack a new smoke alarm and some extra smoke alarm batteries," urges Pat Burke, Fire Marshal of Ontario. "Fire safety is not just for homes, it's for cottages, cabins, seasonal hunt camps, RVs, trailers, and mobile homes too. It's the law in Ontario to have working smoke alarms in every dwelling."

In addition to working smoke alarms, anglers and hunters are encouraged to thoroughly check and clean all heating appliances, (i.e., woodstoves, propane heaters, kerosene heaters, naphtha stoves and lanterns) in their cabins, camps, trailers and recreational vehicles before using them. Chimneys also need to be inspected for any damage or obstructions prior to use and cleaned if deposits of creosote are present. Other important safety tips for anglers and hunters include:

- Bring a flashlight with extra batteries and a carbon monoxide alarm.
- Ensure standby and portable generators are properly maintained in good working order
- Ensure combustibles are kept well away from heating appliances, stoves and lanterns.
- Smoke outside and keep a large can with water nearby so smoking materials can be safely discarded. Tobacco use and excessive alcohol consumption are contributing factors in many fires and can lead to serious injuries or death.
- Check with the local fire department, municipality, or the Ministry of Natural Resources for any restrictions on burning before starting campfires or burning brush.

Failure to comply with the applicable Fire Code smoke alarm requirements can result in a ticket for $235 or a fine of up to $100,000. If you require more information about smoke alarms or fire safety, please contact your local fire department or the Office of the Fire Marshal, at (416) 325-3100.

Additional information is also available at the Office of the Fire Marshal website at www.ofm.gov.on.ca.

Hunting safety commandments:

- Treat every firearm as if it was a loaded firearm and ready to fire.
- Be sure of your target and what is beyond it before you pull the trigger.
- Never point a firearm at anything you don't intend to shoot.
- Always carry a firearm so that the muzzle is under control.
- Firearms must always be unloaded when carried into camp or not in use
- Never climb a fence, climb a tree or jump a ditch with a loaded firearm.

Become a mentor

a game bag. Sunsets, tracks in the snow and the sounds of distant flocks of geese are worth a pause to enjoy them.

- match the apprentice to the firearm and game pursued. Do not expect an apprentice to shoot heavy loads in your 10-gauge or expect them to take ducks with a .410. A single shot 20-gauge is a good starting point for most apprentices.

- until the apprentice has some field experience, shoot from a fixed position where the game can be seen as it approaches you. Hunting ducks over decoys or wild turkeys, or stand hunting give the apprentice a better chance of success.

- carry a camera to document the success of the apprentice.

"Gobble" up new turkey hunting opportunities

This fall hunting season, there's more outdoor opportunities to enjoy in Ontario thanks to conservation-minded hunters who made the wild turkey reintroduction such a success that it now includes a fall hunt.

According to the organization that spearheaded Ontario's turkey conservation program, parts of Haliburton County are now an integral part of the province's fastest growing outdoors activity. New spring turkey hunting opportunities just recently started in certain areas of the County. As always, hunters must consult the M.N.R. Hunting Regulations Summary for specific hunting seasons.

Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters Executive Director, Mike Reader, said, "In 1987, a new wild turkey hunting season was introduced to Ontario, thanks to local volunteers and landowners who supported their successful restoration. Two decades later, wild turkey hunting has skyrocketed in popularity and is now one of Ontario's most highly anticipated outdoor seasons of the year."

Today, Ontario's wild turkey population is estimated at over 80,000 birds.

The success of Ontario's wild turkey restoration program has also created a new economic thrust for hundreds of retailers, motel and restaurant operators. Millions of dollars worth of local economic activity is directly related to over 30,000 local and out of town wild turkey hunters – many of whom book several days of vacation time and will spend literally hundreds of dollars during the five-week hunt in the spring. Presumably, that investment in the turkey hunt will increase with newly added weeks of fall hunting.

Not only did the O.F.A.H. invest over half a million dollars into the wild turkey program, it also pushed for increased outdoor opportunities along the way – opportunities such as the expansion of turkey restoration in locations such as Manitoulin Island, a second turkey hunting license, all-day turkey hunting, Sunday gun hunting, and most recently, the fall turkey hunting which starts this fall in select areas of southern Ontario. Be sure to check the latest M.N.R. hunting regulations at www.ontario.ca/hunting

"As always, the O.F.A.H. stresses that all hunters must respect private property," said Reader, adding that responsible hunters do not tolerate trespassers. "Farmers and landowners work very hard to protect their property investments, and rightly so, they expect lawful and responsible hunters who have permission to enjoy their land."

Reader noted that a growing number of private property owners, as well as locations like Grand River Conservation Authority properties, and most recently, the Simcoe County Forests, insist that all hunters are members of the O.F.A.H., because every member automatically carries special outdoors public liability insurance.

Look out ... deer

Drivers in Haliburton County take caution on the roads

"Look out. Deer!"

Whether you're cottage bound across Highway 118, or just out and about on Haliburton County roadways, be very wary driving in deer country this time of year.

Able to leap tall fences in a single bound, faster than your quickest reaction, and entranced by headlights, white-tailed deer cause hundreds of accidents every year. As deer populations continue to rise, so too do the number of deer-vehicle collisions that result in millions of dollars in insurance claims, personal injuries and, in some very tragic cases, deaths.

Deer are most often active at night, and during the fall mating season, these normally shy and elusive animals are much bolder and travel much farther in search for mates. It is during the fall rut that many collisions with deer are reported. Later in the fall, deer are also moving greater distances in search for food and wintering areas.

Motorists can reduce the risk of hitting a deer by slowing down in areas that are posted with deer crossing warning signs. Drivers should also watch for the tell-tale shine of deer eyes peering from ditches and fence lines. Light reflected by a deer's eyes tends to be greenish in color and much higher off the ground than smaller animals such as raccoons and skunks. Deer often roam together so if a driver sees at least one deer by the roadside, there could be more.

Deer populations throughout parts of Ontario are at historic highs. The average deer weighs between 150 to 200 pounds, but some animals exceed 250 pounds.

Keep your gun dry

After a long day of hunting, or even a short one, make sure your gun is put away dry and oiled. Even if the gun looks dry, condensation should not be left to rust your favorite hunting gun or rifle.

"Guns will rust," said Cam Brownson, host and producer of The Angler & Hunter television show. "You have to make sure the gun is dry and oiled before you store the in a case or a cabinet."

Guns, which have been used on a cold damp day or during the winter, will rust even if you dry them off and give them a coating of oil and leave them. If they have been oiled and condensation sets in it makes it even worse as the oil helps keeps the moisture in and rusts it even more.

"Take that little bit of extra time and make sure the gun is not only dry but brought to room temperature or at least close before you give it the final drying and oiling," said Brownson. "But make sure you don't put too much oil on it either. Just a light spray or small amount on a cloth, with any fine gun oil will do."

Brownson said a rainy fall is the most problem time of the year as hunters put the guns away for the season then take them out in the spring only to find the barrel has some rust on it.

"A gun which is dried and oiled properly will last a long time," added Brownson.

Moose or venison cabbage rolls

GEORGE MCQUARRIE

Your Game to Cook

1 large head of cabbage
Water
2 tsp. salt.

Peel off large outer leaves from cabbage head and set aside. Remove core from inside of cabbage and discard. Peel off inner leaves individually.

Fill a large pot with water to 3/4 full and bring to a brisk boil. Add salt. Drop cabbage leaves in and boil for 3 minutes. Remove to paper towels to dry. When cool, remove the large part of the stems.

2 lbs. ground moose or venison
1/2 lb. ground pork
1 cup cooked white rice
oil
4 garlic cloves
2 chopped onions
2 green peppers
3 tsp. & 3 tsp. Worcester sauce
2 tsp. thyme
2 tsp. Dill
2 tsp. Salt
1 -1/2 tsp. black pepper
6 slices bacon, uncooked
4 tbsp. tomato paste

1 cup tomato juice
3 cup water
1/2 cup vodka

In a large bowl mix ground meat together. Blend in rice. Heat oil in a small fry pan and braise garlic cloves, onions and green peppers; add to meat mixture. Then add 3 tsp. Worcester sauce, plus thyme, dill, salt, and pepper.

To make the cabbage rolls, lay a cooked, cooled leaf on table with stem end towards you. Place two tablespoons of meat mixture in centre. Fold outside edges of leaf towards the middle; pick up bottom of leaf and fold over the meat and leaf edges, moving away from you.

Place cabbage rolls side by side, row by row, and stacked (if necessary), in a deep pan with folded edges facing downward. Cut bacon slices into pieces and lay over each row.

Mix tomato paste, tomato juice, vodka, remaining Worcester sauce, and water together; pour over rolls. Place reserved outside cabbage leaves on top row, tucking sides in. Bake in 325° F. oven for one hour or until cabbage is tender. Spoon some of remaining pan sauce over each serving.

Moose or venison cabbage rolls is a complete meal in itself and needs no other additions.

HALIBURTON HIGHLANDS OUTDOORS ASSOCIATION Deerhound Lost-and-Found

The Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association is running a service for deer and moose hunters and any person who may find a lost hound.

If you find a lost hound during this year's moose and deer hunt, first check the dog's collar for an identification plate with the owner's name and telephone number. If the dog has a number clipped or painted on it, you may contact the owner using the list below, or drop the dog off at a Lost-and-Found Centre. If the dog has no number, you may drop the dog off at any one of the 8 Deerhound Lost-and-Found Centres listed below.

If you are the owner of a lost hound and are not registered with the Association, you should call any of the Lost-and-Found Centres. At the end of this year's hunt, unclaimed dogs will be turned over to the nearest municipal pound. Following the hunt, please call your municipal office.

Camps registered with the Lost-and-Found should display their camp number at their road entrance. To claim your dog at a Lost-and-Found Centres, you must provide proper identification and pay a $5.00 per day per dog boarding fee.

The Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association is an association dedicated to the outdoor sport of hunting & fishing and currently has about 250 members. The Association thanks those individuals and business who have volunteered to act as drop-off centres. If you wish to join the Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association, contact the Hatchery at 457-9664.

This program is sponsored in part by a generous donation from the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters and the Ontario Deer Hound Association. The Ontario Deer Hound Association has a similar program. Please note new shelters:

Responsible hunters respect private land

Hunting season is a great time of the year to explore Ontario's diverse and scenic landscape. The natural beauty of our province is very inspiring, and it is no wonder local rural landowners are the envy of outdoor enthusiasts everywhere.

While this province boasts several thousand acres of government parks, and public Crown lands, much of the area includes private lands.

According to the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, farmers and landowners work very hard to protect their property investments that provide much needed habitat for Ontario's many species of wildlife.

"Private property owners deserve respect," said Robert Pye, Membership Marketing Coordinator of the 82,000-member O.F.A.H. "It's not always easy to find private properties for hiking and bird watching or fishing and hunting. It only takes one trespasser to jeopardize future access to private land. Rightly so, landowners expect lawful and responsible behavior from people who have written permission to enjoy their land."

Pye said people who enjoy the outdoors on someone else's property are privileged guests with a host of obligations to meet and responsibilities to uphold. Common sense and courtesy go a long way to securing a lasting and rewarding friendship with farmers and rural landowners. Responsible anglers and hunters, for example, always ask permission to hunt on private land but they don't stop at that.

- They respect all buildings, fences, crops and livestock;
- They get to know landowners, their concerns about the land, other hunters, and wildlife;
- They offer to help with chores like planting trees or installing fencing;
- They express their appreciation to the landowner through an appropriate gift, or offer to share prepared game meat;
- If they intend to bring companions onto another's land, they get the landowner's permission.

Landowner-hunter agreement forms, available from the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters (O.F.A.H.), provide a level of comfort and protection for hunters and anglers and landowners alike. For more information, contact the O.F.A.H. at (705) 748-6324 for a free copy of the Hunting Ethics brochure and landowner permission forms.

Students vote

Grade 10 student Brad Savage casts his ballot Friday just after his fellow Haliburton Highlands Secondary School student Jessica Slade. Even though the results won't officially count, students voted Friday for their local candidate of choice.

Part of a program called Student Vote, the school set up ballot boxes and asked every student to cast their vote in the federal election. Results will be released at the same time as the official results on Tuesday night.

"Practice makes perfect," said Claire Flatman, a Grade 12 student who organized the vote. "It lets politicians know what's important to students," she said.

Sexual health clinic services set to expand

Starting in October, a new sexual health clinic will be offered in Haliburton County on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month.

The clinic will provide local residents with confidential access to a wide variety of sexual health services, including low-cost birth control, pregnancy testing and counseling, as well as testing and treatment for sexually-transmitted infections (STIs).

The sexual health clinic is a partnership between the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit and the Haliburton Highlands Family Health Team. Sexual health nurses with the health unit will staff the clinics, in consultation with health care professionals from the Haliburton Family Health Team. Anyone who wants to make an appointment or find out more information about the clinic can call toll-free at 1-866-888-4577, ext. 205.

"This clinic will fill an important need in the community for this type of service," says Kerri-Anne Wilson, a sexual health nurse with the health unit.

For the last eight years, students at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School have had an adolescent health clinic at the school. Students with questions and concerns on sexual health issues can have them addressed by a health unit nurse who works in the school. In the community, access to this type of service has not been as readily available for some local residents, Wilson adds.

"Having a community-based sexual health clinic will help ensure that anyone in Haliburton County who wants to get information, testing or treatment for sexually-transmitted infections can get it right here," she adds.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

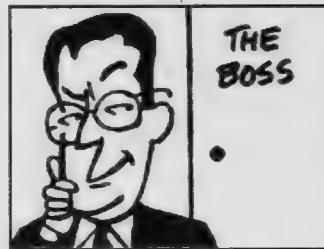

IT DOESN'T HURT TO ASK

QUESTION: I am scheduled to be transferred. What help can I expect from my company on selling my house?

ANSWER: Some companies will help you sell your home. Some will even assist you in buying one in the new location. Big companies often buy a house at its current appraised value if you can't sell it yourself within a specified period of time.

Another approach is for the company to guarantee the home's appraised value and reimburse you if you have to sell it for less. That way, the company doesn't have to get into the real estate business.

Like the title says, "It Doesn't Hurt To Ask."

SOME COMPANIES help their transferees sell their homes. It doesn't hurt to ask about its policy.

Reading needs to be part of child's home life

"I know that the principal before me put all of the focus on literacy and numeracy. It has given some tremendous results," Meunier said.

EQAO is part of the standardized tests given to Grades 3 and 6 students every year. In the reports from the province, readers are reminded that these tests "capture the performance of students at one point in time each year. Consider the results along with other information about students' achievement in reading, writing and mathematics."

"If you look at what we were last year, we were at 60 in reading and now we're at 73. We were at 60 in writing, and we have 73, and 65 in math and now we're at 74. There's been a really nice progression," she said.

The data for Stuart Baker is also broken down by gender, but Meunier said since there are so many more boys than girls, looking at percentages for trends in learning isn't possible.

"My females look like they've done very, very good compared to my males but I have so many more males than females that it skewed that way. In my case, they're pretty much the same, my males and my females," she said.

The one concern that Meunier has is the relatively low number of children whose parents read to them after school. Only 31 per cent of students said that "I read with someone older than me at home" and 46 per cent said they are sometimes read to at home. (That number is only 16 per cent provincially.)

She said that the 125-strong reading volunteer program has helped to fill that gap at her school.

"I see the volunteers at this school and I see the tutor reading program that we have and every kid that's in need of being read to is being read to at this school," she said.

J.D. Hodgson Elementary School principal Traci Hubbert has the same concern.

At her school, 10 per cent of the Grade 6 students tested said they read with someone older than them at home, while 27 per cent said they are read to "sometimes." (This is higher than at the provincial score of four per cent for Grade 6s.)

Sixty-three students took the test last year: 31 girls and 32 boys.

"We're trying to come up with ways to try to encourage parents. When you have only 37 per cent of students in your school who say 'I read with someone older than me at home' and only 45 per cent of kids say 'Someone older than me helps with my writing at home' and things like that, there's a huge discrepancy [with math]," Hubbert said. She noted 80 per cent of students said they get at least some math help at home.

Trends at Hubbert's school are also upward with a jump from 63 per cent of students meeting provincial standard in reading in the 2006/2007 year to 75 per cent in the spring; 51 per cent at the standard in writing to 63 per cent; and 45 to 52 in math.

JDHES is charting above the board level in both reading and writing although the math side is still lagging slightly; 56 per cent of Grade 6 students across the school board are at the provincial mathematics standard and 61 per cent in Ontario are at the standard while JDH is at 52.

"That's a seven-per-cent increase from the year before, so we're moving in the right direction. I think that if you want to focus on something, you can focus on the improvements that were made as opposed to it being at 52 per cent," Hubbard said.

Her school's reading and writing scores have increased 26 per cent over the past two years.

"I think the reason the scores are going up is the kids are getting better at being able to communicate," she said.

"I think it is important to remember this is one measure. This is a snapshot of one group of children on one test on one day during the course of the whole school year. So, we have five grades of students that come to school for 180 days during the school year that do a lot of stuff. I think it's a good measure that gives us a good snapshot of things that we need to focus on and things that we need to do, but I think that you want to be cautious about making it the be all and end all," Hubbert said.

Meunier said that while she'd like to, she can't take credit for her school's score surge.

"Those are not my results. Even if I wanted to make them mine, I could not take credit. It's really the team here and the principal before me," she said.

Coats for Kids means every child can have a warm winter

Once again Frances and Keith Burns are doing the Coats for Kids program. This year the Haliburton Lions Club and the Auxiliary Ontario Provincial Police are involved.

The drop-off points are Archie Stouffer School, Dollo's IGA, and OPP station in Minden. Stuart Baker School, J.D. Hodgson Elementary School, Foodland in Haliburton and Eagle Lake Country Market.

There are new drop off points this year. They are West Guilford General Store, Wilberforce Foodland, Wilberforce Public School and Cardiff Public School. All coats are being cleaned free of charge by Lindsay Dry Cleaners.

The coats will be available free of charge to anyone by simply going to the OPP station in Minden or Haliburton on Saturday, November 22 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Walk this way

Wednesday was national Walk to School Day and many families in Haliburton village took advantage of the beautiful autumn weather to enjoy being outside. Gathering at the town docks, they set off as a group to J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School and Stuart Baker Elementary School. There were a few distractions, such as this duck along the way but it just added to the fun. At far right, Robyn Conlin gave her son Aiden a lift.

Wilberforce gives thanks for community spirit

Warm sunny weather, a colourful landscape, plentiful food, good times with family and friends - so much for which to be thankful. Hope your Thanksgiving weekend was as pleasant as mine.

Hilda Clark
448-2018

There appeared to be a good turnout at the Agricultural Society's turkey supper on Saturday evening. The Lloyd Watson Memorial Centre was buzzing with contented, well-fed folk who seemed to be appreciating the annual hearty meal and the people who prepared it.

Fifty years ago Marion Edwards and William Lawrence were united in marriage in Northern Ontario. They lived, worked and raised their family in the Timmins area. After retirement they decided to move south. They chose Wilberforce and many here are glad they did.

Bill, whose work involved the operation and maintenance of large machinery, has become well-known here for his skill and ability to help others especially with machines both large and small. Marion, too, has made friends and is noted for her needlework skills: sewing, quilt making, knitting, etc., and her willingness to share her knowledge.

This past weekend many of Bill and Marion's family came to celebrate their 50th anniversary. They came from near and far - from places such as Edmonton, Winnipeg, Mitchell, Bayfield, Seaforth, New Liskeard, Englehart, Timmins of course and even Wilberforce. Many informal gatherings took place throughout the weekend with the main celebration on Saturday, October 11. At the beautifully decorated Harcourt Community Centre Bill and Marion were feted over a turkey dinner. Their children and grandchildren were there. There were sisters, brothers, nieces, nephews and great nieces and nephews. Later in the evening friends joined in adding their best wishes. All enjoyed dancing and refreshments and a good time with Marion and Bill. A fine golden anniversary celebration it was and a wonderful family reunion.

On Tuesday, October 21 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. there will be registration and open house at the Wilberforce Curling Club. Drop by for wine and cheese and sign up for one or more of the leagues that will be operating this year. There will be mixed leagues of eight-end games on Monday and six-end games on Tuesday evenings. The Wednesday daytime league plays eight ends and starts at 10 a.m. Men play eight-end games on Thursday evenings. And of course there will be bonspiels to take part in throughout the winter. New members, both experienced and those wanting to learn the game, are all welcome.

Hike Haliburton has some interesting hikes scheduled for October 17, 18 and 19. They include several in the Wilberforce-Harcourt area including Mark and Sandra Bramham's Gems Beneath Your Boots, Geocaching-GPS Treasure Hunt with Sticky Moose (Mary Barker) and the ever popular High Falls Hike And Ride (horses) with Tammy and her daughter Jocelyn Donaldson.

Thanksgiving feast

Since Friday was a professional development day for local elementary schools, Haley Boyland got to enjoy a delicious home-cooked Thanksgiving lunch at WeeCare. The daycare centre was festively decorated to put the children in the right spirit.
